

The Apocadixie Cotton Pickers

The Apocadixie Cotton Pickers are a family traditional jazz band. Roger, who is already a master of the clarinet, was a student of Joan (who is also his uncle). Joan used to play jazz with the tuba and double bass. At home, Joan noticed that Patrícia was good at blowing the tuba, and he decided to pick up the banjo so they could play together. Then, the Apocadixie were born. Sometimes this trio is expanded with other components that are our friends. With the arrival of the pandemic, music was a recreational activity for us and for the children: Bernat and Miquel. From the hours of listening to jazz and playing together, now they can join the original line-up and sometimes, they come to play with us.